

A Method for Obtaining Randomized Algorithms with Small Tail Probabilities

H. Alt
L. Guibas
K. Mehlhorn
Richard Karp
Avi Wigderson

September 26, 1991

Abstract

We study strategies for converting randomized algorithms of the Las Vegas type into randomized algorithms with small tail probabilities.

A third result demonstrates the power of monotone span programs by exhibiting a function computable in this model in linear size while requiring superpolynomial size monotone circuits and exponential size monotone formulae.